Zach Scurlock

Lab 5 Summary

While working on this lab I learned how to convert my knowledge of scheduling algorithms from class into functional code. The first come first serve and shortest time remaining algorithms were pretty simple to implement but the round robin algorithms required some more thought. After a bit of trial and error I was able to get the round robin algorithms up and running. Overall this lab wasn't too bad and I think scheduling algorithms are interesting.